How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

The Fund balances safety and return by focusing on long-term and short-term market trends using technical models. The longer-term Cyclical Trend (CT) measure governs half of the portfolio (core), while the shorter-term Dynamic Trend (DT) measure governs the other half (satellite).

During the first half of the fiscal year, from May 2023 to late October 2023, equity markets struggled. The Fund's benchmark was down -3.38%. In response, the Fund adopted a defensive strategy, favoring cash over bonds due to rising rates. This approach led the Fund to return +1.39% from May 31, 2023, to October 27, 2023.

From late October 2023 onwards, the market shifted to a bullish sentiment. The Fund's benchmark increased by 17.04%. Initially, the Fund lagged due to its defensive stance but shifted to a more aggressive equity allocation by December 2023.

The models positioned the Fund conservatively for much of the first half of the fiscal year, aiding relative performance. However, in November 2023, the conservative allocation caused the Fund to underperform, gaining only 1.79%. Despite this initial underperformance in November 2023, the Fund's tactical shift to increased equity investments by December 2023 allowed it to participate in the subsequent rally. This approach led to a favorable comparison against the Fund's benchmark for the full reporting period.
